Installation Instructions
Extendobed Command Box for 2004 Durango

The Extendobed Command Box uses the seating bolts already in the Durango for anchoring it to the vehicle.

The bottom outside rails of the Command Box has two holes that line up with the third row seats of the Durango that have been removed. These holes are accessed from the open area beneath the drawer. After the Command Box is in place, the 8 mm bolts (supplied with hardware) are inserted in the seat tie down anchor holes. These are accessed from behind the second seat of the Durango, below the drawer.

After the Command Box is bolted in place from below the drawer, the rear Command Box tie downs are anchored to the second row seating bolts of the Durango. The tie-down straps are already attached to the Command Box. Use an 18 mm socket to remove the two second row seat anchors and insert the bolts thru the tie down loops attached to the turn buckle set and insert the bolts back into the seat anchors. After the bolts are tight, turn the turn buckles to secure the Command Box. Do not over tighten the turn buckles.
